NO REASON FOR DOUBT

As to the Merits of Cardui. the Woman's Tonic, In View of Such Evidence.

Tecumseh, Okla,-In a letter from this town, Mrs. Elisa Epperson, says: "I do believe, that if it hadn't been for Cardul, the woman's tonic, I wouldn't have been living to-day.

I am so glad that I began taking Cardul, when I did. Before I began using it, I was in bad health and suffered considerable pain in head, shoulders, back, side, limbs and lower part of my body.

Cardui helped me more than anything I ever did take, and I am in better health since taking it, than I have been in four (4) years.

I shall never be without Cardul, the woman's tonic, in my home, and will always recommend it to other ladies." Can you doubt the merit of Cardui after reading the above letter? This is only one of many that we receive each year. Such testimony, from earnest women, surely proves the great value of this tonic medicine, for the allments peculiar to their sex.

Cardul acts on the weakened womanly organs. It helps to refresh the wornout nerves, and is the ideal medicine for young and old. As a tonic for women, it has brought remarkable results. As a remedy for women's ills, its friends say it has no equal.

As to the Prize Fights Vuigar Exhibitions Are Degrading and a Worse Blot on Name of City. -By Chas. H. Parkhurst

P RIZE FIGHTING, called for popul lar effect "boxing," is a question that is being considered in Boston, as well as in New York. A letter recently received from there asks; "Will you send me some literature upon the matter?"

To which I replied: "You need no literature. Attend one of the bouts. Inspect its brutality. Observe its blood-letting. That will be literature enough. Then go away and tell what you have seen. Describe the character of the crowd that gathered to the occasion. To the extent that you are yourself a human and not a brute you will go back furnished with all the argument needed for the persuasion of men that have been Christianized, or even civilized, or even semi-civilized.

Any man who has an honest desire to have the world's morals improved cannot afford to be indifferent to the effectiveness of those influences that are making for the world's degrada-

If the department confined its attention to such parts of the city as are aiready in a fairly sanitary condition and left unguarded the miasmatic spois and the stench-holes, and the typhoid fever breeding grounds, the town would be up in arms.

Letting it be known that such spots exist is all that would be necessary to assure their cleansing.

Now, why is it that in a community seemingly concerned to rid the city of influences that faint and pollute the minds of men and that corrupt the character of boys almost before they are old epough to have any character—why is it, I say, that the pulpit and the pew, and the great outside respectable world give so little attention and care to those debasing forces that are consuming manhood fasier than the church and the synagog can produce it?

Prize lights pull men down to the coarse and vulgar level of the face-smashing, eye-blackening and blood-letting that are the salient features of the performances, and populate the underworld faster than the churches are putting a moral finish and religious polish on the denizens of the upper world.

It is not enough to hear about them, or to read about them, or to read about them or to see them cartooned. Let the occupants of the pulpits and of the pews go ever and sit close enough to the arena where these buil fights, performed by creatures nominally human, sledge-hammer each other, put out each other's light and split open each other's blood veins. That is the only way to become sufficiently intimate with the facts to realize all that they mean and to be able to talk about them with effect.

Every Man in Danger.

There is no man so white morally or so saintly religiously as to run any risk of being contaminated by close contact with the performers if he attends enly out of honest desire to know the worst, in order that he may be in condition to sound in the ear of the public a warning note.

Bad conditions cannot be estimated by standing off at a distance and inspecting them through an operaglass. Physicians do not ordinarily diagnose the aliments of their patients over a telephone wire.

Those who are Christians, whether in the puiplt or out of it, cannot let the underworld alone without being responsible for what is going on in the underworld, and to spend all our time and effort in trying to make a few respectable people blossom at the same time that we are letting hordes of disrepectable people rot, is not the way to fulfil our obligations, nor is it the way to make a city a great city. the way to make a city a great city.

ART DEPARTMENT OF WOMAN'S CLUB ELECTS OFFICERS AT FINAL MEETING OF CLUB YEAR

HE last meeting of the club year of the art department of the Woman's club was held on Wednesday afternoon at the assembly hall of the Pano del Norte. The meeting was opened by the chairman, Mrs. A. P. Thompson, and the minutes of the previous meeting were read by Mrs. J. L.

Dwyer and approved.

An election of officers of the department for the ensuing year was held and resulted as follows: Chairman, Mrs. J. H. Hirt; vice chairman, Mrs. Carl Lee Smith; secretary, Mrs. T. M. Waller; treasurer, Mrs. John C. Schuller.

Mrs. J. H. Hirt; vice chairman, Mrs. Carl Lee Smith; secretary, Mrs. T. M. Waller; treasurer, Mrs. John C. Schuller.

The program for the day then followed, the subject of which was "American etchers." The walls of the hall wars hung with an exhibit of etchings, the artists being Charles K. Gleeson, of St. Louis, and Alexander Liedmann. These etchings were loaned by J. C. Strauss, of St. Louis, a personal friend of C. K. Gleeson and F. J. Feldman. The exhibition was of scenes in England, Holland, Spain and France These pictures are part of an exhibit held in St. Louis in April.

Miss Alice Hendee gave an interesting talk on the history and characteristics of etchings and explained those on exhibition. Miss Hendee said fine etchings expressed themselves in as few lines as possible. She also gave a short sketch of the life of the artist. C. K. Gleeson, who has been an exhibitor in the Farls salon. Being ambilitous and without means to continue his study, he worked in a railroad office and attended night school.

Mrs. L. L. Mundy gave an interesting paper on F. S. Church, an American painter and etcher. One of his most noted pictures is "The Viking's Daughter." It is said by some he painted the most beautiful women in art.

Mrs. W. S. Valentine gave a sketch of Thomas Moran, an American landscape painter and etcher. One of his most noted pictures being "A Chasm of the Colorado." Painting of America has been his life work and he is now 75 years old.

The poem by Kipling, which was a study in natural history, and the sanswer by Hall Caine, were beautifully read by Mrs. T. M. Noalon. Mrs. C. L. Smith read a paper on James McNeil Whistler, one of his most noted pictures being "A Chasm of the greatest American artists. One of his nost beautiful paintings is "My Mother."

Mrs. Thompson showed masterpleces of artists which added much to the interest of the program.

A rising vote of thanks was given Miss Hendee for her talk, and it was moved and seconded that a letter of thanks be sent to Mr. Feldman for his loan of the Come, now, girls, why don't you do something about all this? You really are a little slow. Aren't you a trifle ungrateful, just a bit dull to the proper sentiments? What? You don't want a "home?" You want a living wage? You'd rather live on tea and toast in your own room than stew and corned beef in a "home?" You hate rules—and then what about the girls who live at home?

Where did you ever get such a notion as that? If ever get such a notion as that? If that's true, there would be no further excuse to pay her such a pittance and, besides, can't she show some huand, besides, can't she show some human feeling and give up her own home—and go and live in a working girl's institution just to show that she has the right spirit toward the good, kind man who puts her money in the envelope for her every Saturday night?

A new weave of crepe voile is the majerial used, it being white for the greater part of the gown and a water-melon pink for the tinted portions. A girdle of a pink, decidedly brighter, fastens at the back under a bow.

The skirt is draped a little at the side and the large rose is embroidered over the folds of the drapery. Natural colors are used for the flowers.

Rendered Enconscious.

Arteria, N. M. April 2i.—A frame dweiling here belonging to E. E. McNatt caught fire from some unknown cause and was totally consumed. McNatt was sleeping in the house and secaped through the window. The heat from the flames ignited the house of Dr. J. D. Graham, on the east, but it was saved by the fire department, after about $300 damage was incurred. Both places were covered by insurance. During the fire, Fay Linnel, a fireman, met with an accident that might have proved very serious. He was on the Graham house with the hose playing on the fire, when the water came in contact with an isolated electric wire and he received a shock that rendered him insensible. He went into convulsions and it was several hours before he could walk.

About 160 Odd Fellows and Rebskahs will go to Roswell Friday to attend the celebration of the anniversary of Odd Fellowship conducted by the Odd Fellows of the valley. They will go by special train, returning the same day.

The town council has entered into a contract with the Arteria Light and Power company to furnish power for a pumping plant on one of the town artesian wells to increase its flow. The company will also furnish a pump and motor. The pump will be installed in a pit 36 feet deep and six feet in diameter. J. R. Atteberry has the contract for making the pit and putting in a pump house. The pump will be in operation about May 15.

The Humility of Love Young Girl in the Mountains Pours Out Her Heart and Gets an Answer, -By Bentrice Fairfax

GIRL who lives in the mountains. A writes from the depths of her troubled heart.

"I am a young girl of 18, and am in love with a young man of 25 who lives in the city. He loves me in return and has asked me to marry him. I know that I am just a mountain girl who lives in a little town. If he takes me to the city, where his folks are well-to-do, know they will be ashamed of me, and also of him. Can you tell me how I can learn the city life and look and dress learn the cmy like a city lady? "Mountain Girl."

Heaven forbid that I should do a thing so monstrous! If by any thought or suggestion I ever influenced any little girl from the country "to learn city life and look and dress like a city lady," then may my punishment be swift and sure! It could not be worse than my deserts. She loves this man with a singleness of purpose, and with her whole heart. She doesn't love him for what such an alliance may bring her in social position or financial returns. She will not give him a heart that is divided with any

She's Like Mountain Air.

She is pure and sweet and wholesome like the mountain air she has always breathed, and her love bears the mark f every true woman's love: Humility She does not question if he is good enough for her, but if she is good enough for him, and would make herself over to match what she dreams might be his ideals.

After she has lived in the city a while she will want to make him over! I won-der if he appreciates the treasure he is winning! If I hoped to make a "city lady" of her, I would introduce her to every de-ception beginning with the powder can and rouge pot, and ending Chaos alone knows where.

I would accompany her to a dressmaker, and assist in tearing down every conception she has of decency and modesty. She must wear her skirts vulgarly tight, and immodestly low. She must take off those sensible shoes that serve for purposes of comfort and protection, and put on pumps and silk hose that will cause the eyes of all men to follow her, that being the beginning and end of all ambition of the "city

I would give her a hat that is a torture to the head under it, and a torment to all who sit near, but that is indispensable because its grotesqueness attracts, I would, in brief, take the care in outfitting her that a sign painter observes in painting a cigaret sign: Anything to catch the eyes of the men!

Will His Folks Be Proud? I wonder when she has been made into a "city lady," and every charm of nature has been tortured, suppressed, pinched, squeezed and painted into all that is hideous and unnatural, if "his" folks will be proud of her. If they are, then they are the kind of relations one is better off for not knowing.

I wonder if the man who loves the mountain girl will love her just as much when she has become a victim of the prevailing city life epidemic. I doubt it, and because I doubt it I want this little 1920 W. Codar St., Louisville, Ky .- "One svening while combing my hair I felt a bore in my head. I scratched it before I knew it and it produced a burning, itching sensation. The seres itched so that I was compelled to scratch them. My hair gradually began to fall out. The dandruff came on my head so badly I could scarcely part is for the crusts of dandruff. Sometimes I would lie awake half the night. My head itched so badly that I did not know what to do. I used remedies but without success. Finally I was advised by a friend to use Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I simply used them as the directions said and they produced a complete cure in about two weeks. Now I have a clean scalp." (Signed) Miss Mary E. Hughley, Apr. 13, 1912.

Every skin trouble that itches, burns, crusts, scales, tortures or disfigures, of infants, children and adults, from pimples to eczema, is successfully treated, in the majority of cases, by warm baths with Cuticura Scap and gentle applications of Cuticura Ointment when all else falls. This is strong language, but justified by over 36 years' use throughout the world of these pure, sweet and centle emollients. Senator Ellihu Root, president of the society, will open the meeting with an address at 8 oclock. The address will be devoted principally to an appreciation of Dr. Francis Lieber, whose "instructions for the Government of the Armles of the United States in the Field," adopted by the government of the United States during the civil war, have laid the foundations for the codification of the laws of war, first by individual nations, and finally by the Hague conferences.

The proceedings will close with a banquet at the New Willard hotel, on Saturday evening. A number of prominent speakers are expected to attend the banquet, including among them secretary Bryan.

The society was organized January 12, 1986, to foster the study of international law and promote the establishment of international relations on the basis of law and justice. Its membership is composed of about 1000 persons residing in all parts of the world and is made up principally of persons in the diplomatic and consular service of the United States and other countries, government officials, international law and persons in terested generally in international affairs.
